RANDY POLLACK

Randy Pollack specializes in developing and directing government and regulatory affairs strategies through lobbying, political grassroots, public relations efforts and organizing industry coalitions. He regularly represents businesses and trade associations before the California Legislature, the executive branch and state agencies.

Randy has been the lead lobbyist on issues involving packaging, dietary supplements, cosmetics, credit reporting, educational and carpet issues. Additionally, he has extensive knowledge in working with Cal-EPA, Department Health Services, Consumer Services Agency and various other agencies to resolve issues on behalf of his clients. In a November 2009 survey, California Legislators voted Randy as the “Most Underrated Lobbyist” working at the Capitol -- a testament to the effective and pragmatic approach he employs on behalf of his clients.

Prior to establishing his own company, Randy was a shareholder for a national law firm where he directed legislative and regulatory strategies for Fortune 500 companies and trade associations. Randy’s 25 years of government experience include serving as Chief Deputy Legal Affairs Secretary to former Governor George Deukmejian where he counseled the Governor and senior staff on a variety of legal, public policy and legislative issues. As chief consultant to the Assembly Agriculture Committee, he oversaw issues affecting California’s $20 billion agricultural industry. In addition, Randy served as legal advisor to the California Public Employment Relations Board.

Randy is a registered California lobbyist and a member of the California and New York Bars. He received his J.D. from University of the Pacific, McGeorge School of Law and his B.A. degree from the State University of New York, Buffalo.
